

TERMS OF AGREEMENT

COMMUNITY VALUES AND LEARNING CULTURE AGREEMENT

At Harvard Business School, we believe that leadership and values are at the heart of our educational mission to educate leaders who make a difference in the world. Our guiding principles of trust and mutual respect, honesty and integrity, and personal accountability are essential to whatever we do, wherever we are, and with whomever we meet.

As an Executive Education participant, and a member of the Harvard Business School community, I have read and understand the School's Community Values and Executive Education Policies, and agree to comply with them.

- Respect for the rights, differences, and dignity of others
- Honesty and integrity in dealing with all members of the community
- Accountability for personal behavior

HBS can and should be a living model of these values. Community members have a personal responsibility to integrate these values into every aspect of their experience at HBS. Personal commitment to these values creates an environment in which all can achieve their full potential.

For additional information, including who to contact to discuss a possible community values violation, please visit the Executive Education website:

SESSION RECORDINGS

Executive Education participants are not permitted to share their Harvard Business School credentials, nor provide access to any classroom sessions or activities, including Zoom links or HBS Live Online Classroom login information with anyone. Participants are not permitted to make audio or video recordings of classroom sessions or Program activities in any form without the express, written permission of the faculty member(s) conducting the session, the participants, and the Program/Portfolio Director. The use of the term "recording" in this policy refers to any images or audio captured by digital or film-based cameras, cellular telephones, generative AI technology, hand-held devices, PDAs, pagers, audio-tape recorders, or any other digital or film-based device. Executive Education participants are not allowed to post photos of other Program participants to a publicly viewed domain (including blogs and websites) without the written permission of the participants. This includes images captured during Program activities or social events that occur outside of the Program schedule. Harvard Business School Executive Education may record sessions for educational use. Recordings are for internal use only and will not be shared outside the Harvard Business School community, unless Harvard Business School seeks and you agree to grant separate authorization. Recordings may include your name, likeness, voice, and/or appearance during Program sessions (e.g., lectures, discussions, comments, polls, surveys, presentation materials, displays, illustrations, documents, materials).

COPYRIGHT AND INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY

All materials provided to participants are protected by copyright and are for use in this Program only and should not be digitized, photocopied, or otherwise reproduced, posted or transmitted for any other purpose without the permission of the Harvard Business School.
